Our Cover

A recurring gag on the late-1960s comedy Get Smart involved telephones. Not only did Maxwell Smart (Agent 86) have a shoe phone, phones on the show were hidden in more than 50 everyday objects, including a necktie, comb, watch, clock, handkerchief, magazine and a garden hose. You, too, can “get smart” when you turn your Android smartphone into a digital communications terminal. Find out how in “An AFSK Interface for Android Smartphones” by Martin Huyett, K0BXB, beginning on page 30.
